Rhymes for To-Day

T HB zephyrs loss the trees to-day
And shake them like to creatures daft,
And every whisper seems to say)....
"It's Taft."

Across the opened window-pane A sunbeam darts a golden shaft. And with it comes the chaste refrain; "It's Taft."

Still still the zephyrs waft and waft And every zeph makes this more clear. "It's Taft."

From homes of joy and dens of crime, From haunts of virtue, vice and graft There flashes yet another time: "It's Taft."

I said it long ago, please grant!
I said it fore, I said it aft,
I told my wife, I told my sunt:
"It's Taft." I think it grand, superb, sublime!
All night I lay awake and laughed!
There are so many words that rhyme
